The Tertiary Education Commission wishes to inform Pacific communities of the tertiary system, tertiary education strategy and opportunities or changes across the tertiary sector that might be of interest to fanau and āiga.

The purpose of this email is to let you know about the Tertiary Education Commission's website as a useful source of information about the tertiary system, the work of the TEC and the tertiary sector.

Tertiary education

Tertiary education in New Zealand covers all post-school education from adult and community education, literacy and numeracy skills, and industry training (including Modern Apprenticeships) to certificates and diplomas, bachelor degrees and postgraduate qualifications. These various tertiary education opportunities are delivered by many types of tertiary education organisation such as wānanga, private training organisations, polytechnics, universities and industry training organisations.

Tertiary Education Commission (TEC):

While the TEC operates the tertiary funding system, an important role for the TEC is to give effect to the Tertiary Education Strategy.
