

Literacy and Numeracy for Adults Assessment Tool - available from 15 March 2010

From 15 March the Assessment Tool will be available to organisations who include literacy and numeracy in their programmes.

The Assessment Tool will provide robust and reliable information on the reading, writing and numeracy skills of adults. This will inform teaching programmes that better meet the needs of learners.

To find out how to access and use the assessment tool see the getting ready to use the assessment tool page of the literacy and numeracy for adults website.

Organisations that have already returned Acceptable Use agreements will receive individual emails about how to access the Assessment Tool from 15 March.

Assessment tool demonstrations

Come and see the assessment tool in action. Demonstrations will be taking place over the next few weeks. You will be able to see the tool in action, take an assessment and find out how to get your organisation started using the tool.

The demonstrations are intended for organisation administrators, managers and educators.

TEC Now - now available on the TEC website

All TEC Now reminders that we send are now available to view on the TEC website. You can also subscribe to the RSS feed that means everytime a TEC Now is put on the website, you will be notified.

This will ensure you get the information you need, when you need it.
